A Father Calls His Child’s Spirit Home

A Lisu-Inspired Silver Bracelet Collection

LIMITED EDITION · 925 STERLING SILVER

Rooted in Lisu heritage, this collection draws inspiration from Cho-Ha-Khua (โช-ฮา-ควัว), the traditional Lisu practice of calling the spirit home.

In this tradition, a thread is prepared through ritual and prayer before being tied around the wrist. It carries the meaning of blessings, protection, good health, compassion, prosperity, and safe journeys, reflecting the hopes and wishes passed on to those we hold dear.

Inspired by this meaningful thread, we reimagine its symbolism in 925 sterling silver, transforming a traditional symbol into a contemporary bracelet that connects cultural heritage with modern life.

Designed to accompany you wherever life takes you, each piece serves as a reminder of your roots, the people who care for you, and the blessings you carry along the way.

No matter how far you travel, may your spirit stay with you — and may your heart always know the way home.

A limited-edition collection inspired by Lisu heritage, belonging, and the enduring bond between generations.

▼ The story

In Lisu tradition, a woman carries seven souls. When one wanders, it is called home, and a thread is tied on the wrist. This collection is that wish, worn: a reminder that you are allowed to come back to yourself. The bracelet takes its line from the ridges that fold away from a highland village at dawn.
